Global Employability

National Agenda

In line with the National Education Strategy 2030, the University of Galway is on a journey to create a more globally diverse, and culturally rich, learning and working experience.

As part of our internationalisation strategy, we have established a dedicated Global Employability Service within the Career Development Centre to provide customised employability support to meet the needs of an increasingly diverse and mobile student population.

The Global Employability Team supports:

- International Students with their transition to employment here in Ireland ensuring the students are job-ready for the Irish labour market.
- Domestic Students that would like to pursue employment outside of Ireland upon completion of their studies.

Global Graduate Opportunities

Having a global perspective is highly regarded by employers and is key to developing an innovative mind-set. Undertaking a work placement or graduate job overseas helps you expand your global network, offers you unique insights and supports the development of valuable skills. In gaining global work experience you can explore new, diverse cultures and develop cross-cultural communication skills which are essential to career development.

We recognise the benefits of supporting our students to gain global experience. We are seeking employers who would like to offer global graduate rotations. If your organisation includes global mobility in your graduate programme, please contact us at careers@univeristyofgalway.ie

Hiring an International Student

According to the HEA, more than 35,000 International Students came to study in Ireland in 2022/2023. Many are undertaking higher level qualifications such as Master's and PhDs in sectors like STEM and business where the Expert Group on Future Skills Need has identified skills and talent shortages. Ibec emphasises that diversity and inclusion is good for business and there is significant global research to confirm this; as such the University encourages employers to consider equality, diversity and inclusion in their graduate recruitment.

Why should your organisation consider hiring an international student?

Employers with a diverse workforce benefit from enhanced brand appeal and financial performance, ethnically diverse organisations are more likely to outperform peers by a staggering 35%

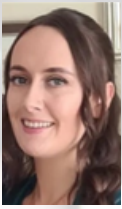

- Excellent way to fill skills shortages in areas such as IT, engineering, science and business.
- Expand your talent pool and develop your workforce language skills
- Grow your exports by harnessing international graduates' home country knowledge to support your market access strategy

Did you know that Ireland offers excellent post-study employment visa opportunities for non-EEA students through the Third Level Graduate Programme, please see our employer visa FAQ for more information.

Employer & Student Experience

Shannon Conroy - Senior Talent Acquisition Supervisor, Medtronic

“At Medtronic, we engineer life-changing technologies that impact patients worldwide. Achieving this mission requires the power of diverse perspectives to challenge our thinking, spark innovation, and reinforce our shared values. Diversity isn't just a priority—it's integral to our business strategy. It drives the creation of fresh ideas, fosters product innovation, and ultimately enables us to better serve our patients.”

In Ireland, Medtronic employs individuals from over 65 nationalities. Students who join us will experience a multicultural environment where diversity is celebrated through various events and employee initiatives. Students may not always see the extensive training and development programmes we have in place to encourage diverse hiring, or the leadership discussions aimed at reducing bias and expanding our talent pool, these efforts are at the core of our commitment to diversity.

Since 2023, Medtronic has been engaged in a five-year Signature Innovation Partnership with the University of Galway. A key goal of this partnership is to enhance Medtronic's reputation as a premier destination for students of all backgrounds. We are dedicated to promoting a culture where all employees feel they belong, are respected, and feel valued for who they are. Find out more about careers at Medtronic at etc.”

Sai Gujulla, Quality Systems Compliance Co-Op, Medtronic

“As a current co-op at Medtronic, with an international background, I have experienced firsthand the importance of Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion (ED&I) in their recruitment practices. ED&I is not just a policy at Medtronic; it's a core value that ensures a welcoming and supportive environment for employees from all backgrounds. This commitment to diversity is evident in how the company celebrates different cultural festivals and even introduces them as themes in the canteen menu. These initiatives enrich the workplace with a variety of perspectives, fosters innovation, and creates a more dynamic and inclusive culture. For students like me, it means being part of a team where diverse ideas are valued, and everyone has the opportunity to contribute meaningfully.”

Employer & Student Experience

Caroline Matthews, Head of Talent Acquisition, People & Culture Director at Grant Thornton Ireland

"At Grant Thornton we are really proud of our commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion.

Our business is built on people and building teams from varied backgrounds, cultures, ages, gender identities, family types, and abilities that bring different and varied viewpoints that are heard and valued.

As an example, we are extremely proud that as of today, we have 72 different nationalities at Grant Thornton Ireland. We were recently awarded the Investors in Diversity Gold accreditation, and this accreditation recognises our commitment to equity, diversity, and inclusion and how we enhance our culture through these activities.

The connection between Grant Thornton University of Galway is so important, we have a very strong alumni connection through our current employees."

Mohit Khanduja, Senior Consultant, Business Risk Services, Grant Thornton Ireland

"My name is Mohit Khanduja , I work as a Senior Consultant in Business Risk Services at Grant Thornton Ireland, and I am an alumni of the University of Galway. I came to Ireland to explore new opportunities and decided to pursue the MSc in International Accounting and Analytics at the University of Galway because of its academic reputation. The course content helped me to refine the skills and complement the knowledge I had from my previous work as an accountant in India.

I availed of the services and the help from the Career Development Centre which helped me in building my CV and refining my interview skills. I was lucky to secure an opportunity with Grant Thornton Ireland. My work as a senior consultant in Business Risk services involves performing audits for leading clients across multiple industries.

About Grant Thornton Ireland, they have a very open and inclusive environment, I can see and be part of a diverse workforce there and the culture and team are very supportive." Watch here

Employability Award

What is it?

The University of Galway Employability Award is designed to increase students' employability skills, empower them to make successful transitions towards fulfilling careers and equip them with a framework for lifelong career management.

The Award helps prepare them directly for employment by:

- developing their work skills through workshops and events
- highlighting their work experience and leadership roles
- helping them articulate what they can offer to employers.

"I now have the self-belief that I have the skills to succeed"

What do the students need to do to complete the award?

There are 5 pillars to the award. To receive the award students must:

1. Attend an employability workshop
2. Complete the required work experience hours (including on-campus leadership roles, part-time/summer work, volunteer leadership roles and internships)
3. Join employability skills workshops
4. Take part in career development events
5. Update their CV and complete an online practice interview – assessed with feedback provided to the students.

"I now have the drive to improve and become a more competent employee"

"The Employability Award definitely played a central role in helping me secure a job when I graduated"

Opportunities to Partner with the Employability Award:

1. Collaborate/deliver an Employability Skills Workshop (1 hr)
2. Build your talent pipeline by ring fencing 1-2 summer internships for students who complete the Employability Award at an excellent standard

Equality, Diversity & Inclusion

The University of Galway is committed to the promotion of equality of opportunity and to creating and sustaining an environment that values and celebrates the diversity of our staff and student body.

Our aim is to be one of the best universities in the world in which to work, study, and contribute to learning, scholarship, and research. In order to achieve this goal, the knowledge and ambitions of all staff and students must be harnessed, and their different perspectives must be included to further develop a supportive and encouraging environment for all.

Transition to Employment

There are a multitude of ED&I-focused projects ongoing across the the University. Transition to Employment is an award winning widening participation employment initiative run by the Career Development Centre. It seeks to support students with disabilities or mental health issues who are preparing to transition into the work place either as a graduate, a student going on placement, or a student seeking a summer internship or part time job.

It won best Equality, Diversity & Inclusion Programme at the 2023 Global Careers Summit Award in London and has also received international recognition from the Association Graduate Careers Advisory Service (AGCAS) in 2021 by winning Excellence Award for Diversity, Equality and Inclusion award. It was shortlisted in 2020 for the Zero Project Award in the category of out of 500 global applications and won Association of Higher Education Career Services (AHECS) Employability Award in 2017.

The programme provides participants a unique opportunity to network and connect students directly with employers. Employers share their own experiences of their career journeys and the diversity and inclusion strategies of their organisations.

"Showed me my future is going in the right direction for employment"

"I realised there are supports and I am not alone"
