

The Film Corner International Conference:
Resources for Film Education in the Digital Age
University of Galway, 17th-18th June 2025

As part of the Creative Europe funded Film Corner Online Film Education Project [<https://www.thefilmcorner.eu/>] we are inviting participants for a conference examining the practical possibilities for online film pedagogy and its use in on-site locations. A key concern of the conference will be to provide practical resources in the area of film education to teachers intending to deliver the new Leaving Certificate subject Drama, Film Studies, and Theatre Studies to be introduced in Irish secondary schools from September 2025. We welcome teachers, students, practitioners, academics and interested members of the general public to the panels and workshops to be featured on this topic. Topics to be addressed in the conference will include

- What is film education?
- Introduction to the Film Corner Film Education platform, including the online teaching resources provided
- Online teaching resources for film education
- Workshops which address teaching approaches to both critical and creative requirements of the new Leaving Certificate subject Drama, Film, and Theatre Studies.

Speakers to address the conference will include Ian Wall (Founder & Director of Education, Film Education, one of the longest established provider of resources for film education); Professor Mark Reid (University College London formerly Head of British Film institute's Film Education programmes); Alicia McGivern (Education Programme Manager, Irish Film Institute)

The deadline to register to attend is March 3rd 2025. As there are limited places available early registration is advised. To register please complete the form at the following link:
